

Last updated: 01:13 (GMT+04) Tuesday, March 11, 2008. Rabi'ul-Awwal 2, 1429.

GNAds4U.COM helps you find the vehicle that you need...

Search  Mobile edition ePaper Live weather Shortcuts

GNAds4U

- JOBS4U
- WHEELS4U
- PROPERTIES4U
- CLASSIFIEDS4U

- THE NATION
- THE GULF
- THE REGION
- THE WORLD

- BUSINESS
- SPORT
- TECHNOLOGY
- IN DEPTH
- IN PICTURES
- YOUR PICTURES

- FEATURES
- TABLOID
- FRIDAY
- E+
- EXPLORE
- UNWIND
- NOTES
- SPORT EXTRA
- ASK THE LAW
- RESIDENTS GUIDE
- ABOUT THE UAE

SUPPLEMENTS

Dubai Boat Show

- YOUR SAY
- LETTERS
- POLLS
- EMAIL US
- OPINION
- EDITORIALS
- COLUMNS
- WEEKEND REVIEW
- SUPPLEMENTS

- ABOUT GULF NEWS
- SEARCH
- PAST EDITIONS
- FRONT PAGE PDF
- EPAPER
- MOBILE EDITION
- SUBSCRIPTIONS
- RSS FEEDS
- JOBS AT GN

BUSINESS

COMMENT AND ANALYSIS

Governments are now demanding a larger share of profits

By Leah Bower, Special to Gulf News
Published: March 11, 2008, 00:41

You can't go to any part of the world anymore without stumbling over a proposed natural gas pipeline project.

The same is true in Alaska, which already boasts a massive oil pipeline. But unlike most regions, Alaska's leadership seems to be dead-set on finding new and elaborate hoops to make energy companies jump through. So why does this matter to people halfway around the world?

Because Alaska flexing its muscle at oil companies is no different from Russia or Venezuela doing the same thing. Governments on all levels are increasingly looking to keep more oil revenue at home, especially now that oil companies are pulling in huge profits.

As oil prices soar, and new reserves become harder and harder to find, governments feel that they have more power to control how much money stays home. "We've got to play hardball," Palin told Bloomberg. "The time is right to develop these resources because of the price of fuel."

The oil majors aren't liking this one bit. Alaska's homegrown governor Sarah Palin - who is a Republican, but seems to have missed out of US President Bush's pro-oil bandwagon - has spent the time since she took office in December 2006 routinely pissing off the oil companies operating in the largest state in the union.

Palin has already raised taxes on oil profits by $1.5 billion a year in Alaska, which boasts the second-largest reserves in the US. "Today, by our calculations, Prudhoe Bay has the highest production tax in the world," said BP Exploration (Alaska) president Doug Suttles, according to the International Herald Tribune.

But two Alaska legislators have been recently been convicted, and a third has been charged, in connection with an investigation into corruption that included reworking the state's petroleum tax structure under the previous administration to be more favourable to oil companies. Even the chief of staff for former Governor Frank Murkowski, whose administration agreed to the tax structure Palin has since dismantled, has pleaded guilty to conspiracy in his dealings with a now-defunct pipeline service company, Veco Corporation.

RSS RSS FEED

>> Get Business as a news feed

YOUR MONEY

- >> Currency converter
- >> Latest Forex rates

LATEST STORIES FROM BUSINESS

BUSINESS
Women business leaders make their mark in Mideast

BUSINESS
Acer Computer eyes Dh2.93b regional earnings

AUTOMOBILES

- >> Chrysler Jeep introduces 3.7-litre Cherokee 2008 in UAE market
- >> Mazda unveils next-generation 2009 model in three versions

AVIATION

- >> Etihad's flights set to increase in summer

BANKING AND FINANCE

- >> Islamic banks post strong growth
- >> Bangladesh scraps bank sale to Saudi prince
- >> Qatar's central bank auctions first CDs
- >> Emirates NBD inks Dh500m loan pact with Daman Real Estate
- >> UNB gets approval to set up Qatar branch

BUSINESS FEATURE

- >> Women business leaders make their mark in Mideast
- >> A contradiction that works
- >> Electronics devices going green

COMMENT AND ANALYSIS

- >> Governments are now demanding a larger share of profits
- >> The shock of a workplace suicide

COMMERCE

- >> Is shopping entirely convenience-driven?

COMMODITIES

- >> Gold falls more than 1% as platinum plunges

DEVELOPMENT

- >> Nakheel Marinas plans to create berths for full range of vessels

ECONOMY

- >> Dollar peg under review
- >> Dollar near eight-year low against yen
- >> Japan unlikely to act against dollar's slide

GENERAL

- >> World Economic Forum will hold sessions on Mideast nations

HOTEL & TOURISM

- >> Fairmont to open six more UAE hotels in three years

INDUSTRY

- >> Private sector gets nod to build and operate utilities

INSURANCE

- >> Al Buhaira sets up takaful venture with Austrian firm

MARKETS

- >> Dubai remains flat as Abu Dhabi stock market drops marginally

RADIO 1

Listen now

RADIO 2

Listen now

- >> Streaming FAQs
- >> Radio schedules

SPORT SPECIAL

Dubai Tennis 2008

And according to the two main newspapers in Alaska, the investigation continues. Palin is also pushing for settlement in the long-running Exxon-Valdez oil spill lawsuit, telling the Washington Post that "When I got in here, that was one of the first orders of business: to find out how in the world can this administration speak on behalf of all Alaskans who have been so adversely affected by this spill."

After 14 years of back-and-forth appeal, Alaskans are still awaiting judgment on the $2.5 billion award, which with interest may have grown to around $4.8 billion. Now, Palin wants firm control of a proposed natural gas pipeline that would bring Alaskan gas to the lower 48 states.

The North Slope contains 35 trillion cubic feet of natural gas, but lack of transport has prevented development of the fields. A pipeline would boost Alaska's petroleum revenue as the amount of Slope oil flowing through the existing pipeline declines.

The oil majors declined to submit proposals to build a pipeline, citing concerns about the state's requirements, and only one Canadian company submitted a qualified bid. Now the majors are balking at supplying natural gas if and when the pipeline deal is accepted. Palin threatened to revoke leases for oil fields if BP, Exxon and ConocoPhillips refuse to participate.

As governments demand a larger share of the profits from the resources being pulled out of their land, the oil majors are going to find it harder to pull in the profits they are used to. And with prices high for all petroleum products, governments have good reason to stick to their guns.

- The writer is a freelance journalist based in Alaska, USA.

More from ..... Business

Email this article 	Printer-Friendly version 	Email the Editor 	Bookmark this article
---	---	---	--

Post this story to:

Del.icio.us | Digg | Facebook | Reddit

>> Indian equities pare early decline to end down 0.3%

OIL & GAS

>> US crude hits a record of over $107

>> Opec expects spike to last through year

REAL ESTATE PROPERTY

>> Singapore hopes to catch up with Dubai

SPECIAL EVENTS

>> Gulf Craft to launch new yacht models on Tuesday

TECHNOLOGY

>> Victorious Blu-ray ready for take-off in UAE

>> Gulf ICT market one of the fastest growing in world

TELECOM

>> Alcatel to upgrade cable capacity

MORE STORIES FROM BUSINESS

BANKING AND FINANCE

>> DIB appoints new board chairman

ECONOMY

>> US economy teeters on edge

INVESTMENT

>> DIC in advanced talks for Liverpool

TECHNOLOGY

>> UAE shies away from online shopping

>> Data traffic jam is looming ahead

>> Mikons lets you get creative

>> Sun to sell 'virtual' computers

>> Acer eyes Dh2.93b regional earnings

>> Nokia to use web video service

>> More TV channels to be added

TELECOM

>> Thuraya to bolster global position

>> TRA: Ban on VoIP services to continue

MONEY

>> World's key central bankers to discuss credit turmoil